

FOR SCHOOL LEADERSHIP

One behavior-modeling approach for every student

Schoolbeat gives every educator short, ready-to-use video lessons that model the real situations students face. Students watch choices unfold, discuss the consequences and practice a better response.

WHY IT IS WORTH A LOOK

- Zero prep for teachers
 Teachers press play and follow the prompts. No new lesson planning.
- Built for engagement
 Choose-your-own-adventure stories turn students into participants.
- Useful beyond one classroom
 The same language follows students into hallways, support services and the schoolyard.
- More visibility
 Daily check-ins help staff notice which students may need support.

A 4-STEP BEHAVIOR MODELING ROUTINE

1 WATCH

See a realistic situation.

2 IDENTIFY

Name how to react in a similar situation.

3 PRACTICE

Discuss a better response.

4 APPLY

Recall it when it happens.

What changes when everyone uses the same approach

A single classroom can benefit. Schoolwide access adds consistency for students, clarity for staff and a shared view of emerging needs.

01 A shared language

Students hear the same strategies in classrooms, hallways, support services and the schoolyard.

02 More consistent intervention

Adults can refer back to familiar concepts instead of starting from scratch during a difficult moment.

03 A clearer schoolwide picture

Check-ins and school-level data help teams spot recurring needs and coordinate support.

04 Less burden on teachers

Ready-to-teach lessons make consistent use realistic, without extensive training or preparation.
